Job description

Plan India

Plan International (India Chapter), known as Plan India, is an Indian not-for-profit organisation that works for the well-being of children and for equality for girls and women. Since 1996 it has helped millions of children and young people get support from government programmes for child protection, education, healthcare, a healthy environment and livelihoods. Its grassroots work centres on children, their families and their communities, and aims to change unfair gender norms for good. This role sits within Plan India's Supply Chain Management Strengthening (SCMS) Project, which helps NACO (National AIDS Control Organisation) and SACS (State AIDS Control Societies) make sure HIV medicines, test kits and other health supplies reach every facility on time, under a grant from the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria.

Role

The Regional Supply Chain Manager works with the State AIDS Control Societies of Gujarat, Rajasthan, and Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu. They help state teams plan, store, deliver and report on ARV (antiretroviral) medicines, test kits and other supplies under the NACP (National AIDS Control Programme). The aim is simple: people living with HIV and people coming for testing should never find the medicines or kits they need out of stock. The role is based in Ahmedabad, reports to the Senior Project Manager, and works with the Deputy Project Director on technical matters.

Responsibilities

- Train SACS and facility staff in forecasting, inventory management, distribution and stock reporting, working with SACS programme managers.
- Coordinate with SACS and the 3PL (third-party logistics) provider to deliver ARV medicines to ART (antiretroviral therapy) centres, test kits to ICTCs (Integrated Counselling and Testing Centres) and other supplies to facilities, using a proper cold chain for temperature-sensitive items.
- Resolve transport and logistics problems, including road permits and paperwork for excise and customs duty exemptions.
- Track stock levels at state warehouses and facilities, report stock-outs right away, and warn NACO and SACS about under-stocking, overstocking and items close to expiry.
- Help SACS work out and refill facility needs, and arrange moving supplies within or between states when needed.
- Visit selected ART centres and ICTCs to check that SOPs (standard operating procedures) are followed and to guide logistics staff on the job.
- Support SACS staff and facilities to improve ordering and stock management and to send weekly, monthly and quarterly reports on time.
- Prepare weekly, monthly and quarterly progress reports for your supervisor and the project team, including reports on expired medicines and kits.

Requirements

- A graduate degree in business, science or pharmacy, plus an advanced or professional qualification in supply chain, logistics or operations management.
- 7 years of relevant experience, including 3-5 years managing public health programmes or supply chains at national or state level, with HIV/AIDS programme experience as an advantage.
- Familiarity with how government supply chain processes work.
- Ability to explain technical health information to both health and non-health audiences and to build agreement with government partners.
- Strong spoken and written English and the local language.

- Based in Ahmedabad or willing to relocate there, and able to travel about 50% of the time across Gujarat, Rajasthan, and Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu.
- This is a contract position until 31 March 2027, and the role involves occasional contact with children, so you must follow Plan India's Safeguarding and Gender Equality Policies.

Benefits

- Play a direct part in India's national HIV response, helping life-saving medicines reach the people who need them.
- Work closely with NACO, State AIDS Control Societies and a Global Fund project, building strong public health supply chain experience.
- Join an equal opportunity employer that encourages qualified women to apply and is committed to child rights and child protection.

About Plan India

Plan India is a not-for-profit organisation working across India to advance children's rights and equality for girls. Registered in 1996 as Plan International's India Chapter, it works with government, communities, and corporate partners on education, health, protection, and economic opportunity for children and young people, with a particular focus on girls and adolescents. Its stated goal is for 10 million girls and young women to learn, lead, decide, and thrive. Since its founding, Plan India has implemented child centred community development programs in more than 5,500 villages and urban slums across over 80 districts in India.

Major Areas of Work

- Inclusive and Quality Education: Programs that improve access to and quality of schooling for children, with a focus on girls.
- Safety for Girls and Child Protection: Work against child labour, child marriage, trafficking, and abuse, including support for missing children and legal aid.
- Youth and Household Economic Security: Skills training, career guidance, and livelihood support for young people, especially girls and young women.
- Sexual and Reproductive Health Rights and Services: Health education and access to services for adolescents and young people.
- Maternal, Child Health, Nutrition and Early Childhood Development: Programs supporting pregnant mothers, infants, and young children.
- Climate and Humanitarian Action: Emergency response and resilience building, including relief work during disasters like the Asian Tsunami and recent flood response in Assam.

Major Initiatives & Programmes

- Because I Am a Girl: Plan India's flagship campaign, running since 2005, advocating for the rights and status of girls in India.
- Paramarsh: A career guidance and planning program for children and young people, with a focus on girls.
- Safer Cities: An initiative building safe, accountable, and inclusive cities and public spaces for women and girls, including the Pink Toilets project.
- Missing Child Alert: A project responding to child trafficking and missing children cases.
- Girls Advocacy Alliance: A program working to secure equal rights and opportunities for girls.
- Digital Mitra: A program addressing online safety for young people.

Impact

Plan India states its work has reached the lives of 3 crore girls and youth across India. It has run child centred community development programs in more than 5,500 villages and urban slums spanning over 80 districts. The organisation is a development partner of NITI Aayog on the Aspirational Districts and Aspirational Blocks Programs, and works with national bodies including the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights on child protection issues.

Leadership

- Bhagyashri Dengle, Chief Executive
- Madan B. Lokur, President, Governing Board
- Pooja Mathur, Director, Human Resource, Organisation Development and Operations
- Rajesh Rana, Director, Programme and Strategic Partnerships

Partners

NITI Aayog, National Commission for Protection of Child Rights, Global Fund, HDFC Parivartan, Bank of America, AXA, Zurich, Sandvik, CBRE, Relaxo, Metso, Concor, Punjab National Bank

Plan India suits people who want to work on child rights and gender equality at national scale, with direct engagement across government, community, and corporate channels. The organisation runs a wide portfolio of projects across education, health, protection, and livelihoods, giving employees exposure to different parts of the development sector under one roof. It appeals to people who want to work on long-term, systemic issues affecting girls and children, backed by a nearly three decade long presence in India.
