Swami Vivekananda Youth Movement (SVYM)

Swami Vivekananda Youth Movement is a development organisation based in Mysuru, Karnataka. It works with rural and tribal communities across the state, running socio-economic development projects that reach people who are often left out of mainstream services. The organisation has a long history of community work and a clear plan for where it wants to go next. Its projects depend on steady support from individual donors and companies who believe in that work. This role sits within SVYM's fundraising and partnerships function, which builds and keeps the donor relationships that pay for the projects on the ground. Career_feature.jpg

Role

As Officer - Relationship Management, you will be an ambassador for SVYM. You will meet donors and companies, tell them the story of the organisation and what its projects are changing, and turn that interest into lasting support. The work is a mix of finding new funders, looking after the ones SVYM already has, and making sure every supporter knows exactly what their money made possible.

Responsibilities

- Represent SVYM to existing and potential funders, sharing the organisation's vision and the impact of current projects.
- Manage relationships with existing funders and keep them close over time.
- Send regular project updates to donors so they can see what their support has done.
- Resolve donor concerns and escalations early, before they grow.
- Conduct market research to find new funding opportunities and understand where support is likely to come from.
- Handle retail fundraising activities.
- Re-engage donors who have lapsed and bring them back to the organisation.

- Increase the share of giving SVYM receives from existing donors.
- Cold call potential CSR and individual funders and secure meetings with them.
- Run strategic market scans to build a pipeline of leads.
- Write clear and convincing donor proposals.
- Deliver presentations to funders that hold their attention and lead to a decision.

Requirements

- Graduate or master's degree in the development sector, CSR, or marketing and sales.
- Freshers are welcome to apply.
- Professionals with 1-2 years of experience in the NGO sector are preferred.
- Strong spoken communication skills in English and Kannada.
- Strong written communication skills in English and Kannada.
- Proficient in MS Office, specifically for building reports and presentations.
- Knowledge of digital marketing is a strong advantage.
- Comfortable making cold calls and asking for meetings.
- Able to write proposals that explain a project clearly to someone outside the sector.
- Confident presenting to donors and company teams.
- Positive attitude towards the work and the people it serves.
- Excellent interpersonal skills.
- Exceptional follow-up habits, so nothing with a donor is left hanging.
- Openness to learn and take on feedback.

Benefits

- Full time role with an established development organisation in Mysuru.
- Direct exposure to senior donors, CSR teams and the leadership of the organisation.
- A clear entry point into the development sector for freshers.
- Learn fundraising, partnership building and proposal writing on real projects.
- Work that connects your effort to visible community outcomes.

About the Company

Visit website →

Swami Vivekananda Youth Movement (SVYM) is a development organisation that has worked with tribal, rural and urban communities for close to four decades. It defines development as the constant expansion of human capabilities, and advocates building the human and social capital of people on the conviction that economic consequences follow from that rather than the other way round. It states this approach is meant to hold a balance between people and the planet, give reasonable and equitable benefits to all stakeholders, and create an environment of peace and harmony. Its work is deliberately multidisciplinary, running interventions in health, education, socio-economic empowerment, and training and research at the same time in the same communities. SVYM describes the development it aims for as contextually relevant and culturally appropriate, shaped by long, close proximity to the communities it serves. ■ Headquarters: Mysuru, Karnataka.

Major Areas of Work

- Health: Hospital-based and community-based healthcare for rural, tribal and low-income urban populations, including palliative care and maternal and newborn health.
- Education: Schooling for indigenous tribal and rural students, plus school improvement work inside government schools and scholarships for higher education.
- Socio-economic empowerment: Self-help groups, livelihood training and enterprise support for tribal and rural women, farmers, youth and persons with disabilities.
- Environment and sustainability: Programmes framed around models of development that do not depend on the current pattern of economic growth.
- Training and research: Capacity building and research that feeds back into the organisation's own practice and into public policy.

Major Initiatives and Programmes

- Vivekananda Memorial Hospital: SVYM's hospital at Saragur, providing what it describes as rational, ethical and cost-effective care to rural and tribal patients.

- Equitable palliative care: Free hospital-based and home-based palliative care delivered across Mysuru, Hassan, Bengaluru, Dharwad and Saragur.
- Viveka Tribal Centre for Learning (VTCL): A residential school for indigenous tribal and rural children, with an alumni base that includes teachers who have returned to teach tribal art and craft there.
- School Education Programme: Work inside government schools to improve scientific temper, academic performance and career choices among students.
- Viveka Rural Livelihood Centres: Training centres across Karnataka equipping rural youth, women and farmers with livelihood capabilities.
- Community Radio Station: A station broadcasting 14 hours a day with over 40 programmes for tribal and rural listeners.

The hospital at Saragur is the anchor of the health work. SVYM states around 50,000 rural and tribal patients access care there each year, and it functions as the base from which community outreach, palliative care and maternal health services extend into surrounding villages.

Impact

SVYM's own site cites 70,000 people accessing better healthcare through its institution-based and community-based programmes, 12,000+ families served with free palliative care, 38,000+ individuals reached through primary healthcare outreach in low-income urban Bengaluru, 3,000+ scholarship-supported students, 35,000+ students engaged across 200 government schools, 1,300+ tribal and rural students in its own educational institutions, 350+ self-help groups, 4,200+ rural youth, women and farmers trained at its livelihood centres, and a community radio reach of 270,000. It maintains partnerships with Infosys Foundation, the Government of Karnataka, the Ministry of Tribal Affairs, Qualcomm, Texas Instruments, Titan, ONGC, Trellex, Nayara and Availity.

Leadership

- Dr R Balasubramaniam, Founder

A job here means working directly with tribal, rural and low-income urban communities in Karnataka, usually in the field rather than at a distance from it. The multidisciplinary structure means health, education and livelihoods work sit alongside each other, so exposure is broad rather than confined to one vertical. The organisation runs its own hospital, schools, livelihood centres and radio station, which gives staff experience of institutions that are operated, not just funded. It suits people who want long-horizon community development work and are willing to be based close to the communities served.
